NEW GARDEN

In June 2021, Jessi's first comic was published with the Canadian publication carte blanche.

The 7 page black and white comic reimagines Jessi's personal journey with disability and ableism in a fantasy setting.

Ongoing and Upcoming

Currently, Jessi is working on getting their shit together.

With plans to focus more fully on comics in the future, Jessi is working on developing their skills in storytelling, visual development, and all the ins and outs of sequential art making.

They're also working on upgrading their equipment and working with new mediums, including gouache.

They have some grandiose plans for a comic with lush scenery, found family, fat and disabled characters, mystical and normal animal companions, fantasy, and adventure that they're working on slowly building while also keeping their shop updated with fresh new fantasy pieces of fat and disabled people as always.

Keep an eye out on Jessi's website and consider signing up for their newsletter so you can know when they'll be sharing more details on these updates, and in the meantime, you can look forward to a shop reopening in September 2022 with all new products and designs.

You can also find them on Instagram and Twitter, with plans for a YouTube channel in the works, as well, where you'll find a delightful mix of art videos, vlogs, behind the scenes, and more-- one day.

Until then, stay safe!
